Steve was my direct trainer when I was at Revature in 2018. He trained me on many different technologies and assessed both my personal and group application projects that I had to develop during my time spent there to make sure I'm grasping the many technologies I'm learning and preparing me to become a professional software engineer.

Dale was my direct lead and scrum master for 2 years on a couple of projects we worked together on at Infosys for a telecommunication business client. We worked together on understanding business requirements, planning the architecture of projects, and making sure user stories are completed by the end of sprints.
